Unit-1 Language

Dr Balkrishna Waghmare

1. What is language?

In a very broad sense, language is a tool of communication. It is a medium by which we exchange our thoughts, ideas, emotions etc. It is God's special gift to mankind. It has played an important role in the development of human civilization. Language is present everywhere. It is present in our thoughts and dreams, in our actions and deeds, in our prayers and meditations, and in our relations and rituals. It is a source of delight as well as a storehouse of knowledge. It helps us to transfer knowledge from one person to another, one generation to another. It is present in all our activities.

2. Definition of Language

- 1. Language is primarily human and non-instructive method of communicating ideas, emotions and desires by means of a system of voluntarily produced symbols.
  - "Sachin" "English"
- 2. Language may be defined as the expression of thought by means of speech sounds.
  - Henry Sweet: "The History of English"
- 3. Language in its widest sense means the sum total of such signs of our thoughts and feelings as are capable of external perception and as could be produced and repeated at will.
  - A.H. Gardiner: "Speech and Language"
- 4. A language is a symbol system based on voice or arbitrary convention, freely understandable and modifiable according to the changing needs and conditions of the speaker.
  - R. H. Robinson: "General Linguistics"
- 5. A language is a system of arbitrary vocal symbols by means of which a social group communicates.
  - Bloch & Trager: "Outline of Linguistic Analysis"
- 6. Language is human, a verbal systematic symbolism, means of transmitting information in form of vocal behaviour, with a high degree of convention.
  - Whistler: "Language"

Basic Characteristics of Language

1. Arbitrariness
Language is arbitrary. By arbitrariness we mean that there is no inherent, logical relation or similarity between any given feature of a language and its meaning. For example, there is no logical reason why the four legged domestic animal should be called 'Dog' in English, 'Kutta' in Hindi, 'Kukkur' in Sanskrit, 'Nat' in Kannada, 'Chien' in French 'Hund' in German and 'Kutra' in Marathi and so on.
2. Duality of structures
Language is symbolic and its symbols are arranged in a particular way. All languages have their system of arrangements. An utterance in a language consists of an arrangement of speech sounds. At the same time, any utterance consists of arrangement of words of that language. Every word is represented by small arrangement of speech sounds. Words can't exist without speech sounds and speech sounds are useless if they are not combined in words.

3. Productivity or creativity
Language is highly productive or creative. There are various ways of combining all units of language. Using a few basic principles of construction, human beings create a large number of constructions. There is no limit to the length of any sentence. For example, "This is the cow with long horns that tossed the dog that worried the cat that chased the rat, ..." can be continued at any length by repeating the relative clause pattern.
4. Interchangeability
In any communication system 'sender' and 'receiver' are two important factors to complete the process. There must be someone to send the message and there must be someone to receive the message. These roles of sender and receiver are interchangeable in human languages. It means the one who sends the message can receive the message and the one who receives the message can also send the message. The roles of sender and receiver can be played at the same time by human beings. These roles are interchangeable. The speaker of a language speaks and at the same time listens to other speaker.

5. Specialization
Language is a specialised communication system. Specialization refers to the fact that, there is no need of total physical involvement in the act of communication. The speaker can speak while walking or doing a job. He need not stop walking or working while speaking. He also need not talk about his walk or work.
6. Displacement
Human languages can be context free. Human beings can talk about experiences without actually living them and of objects and events not physically present at the time and place of speaking. It is because the use of human language is not directly controlled by stimulus. We can now make statements about what happened in England in the 19th century. Language can be used to refer to real or imaginary matters in the past, present or future.

7. Cultural Transmission

Language is conventional. It is the gift of evolution and convention. No language was created in a day by a group of humans. It is culturally transmitted. Each generation transmits this convention to the next generation. It is a convention in a community. It is not genetically transmitted. It is non-instinctive because it is acquired through learning by human beings. Nobody gets a language in heritage, he acquires it.

Human and Animal Communication

• Hire Purchase & Instalment
System

-Dr. P. B. Lupane

Krantiagrani G. D. Babu Lad College, Kundal

Hire Purchase & Instalment System

• Meaning:
Hire Purchase is an agreement under which the hire purchaser acquires the assets and agrees to pay the cost of the asset in convenient instalments along with the interest thereon. The ownership of the asset is passed on from seller to the hire purchaser only on the payment of last instalment. However, the hire purchaser can make use of asset and thereby earn the income, if any, and go on making the payment of instalments. In case of non-payment of instalments by the purchaser, the hire vendor/seller has right to reacquire the asset or recover the unpaid instalments through court action. The instalments are treated as hires until the last instalment is paid.

Krantiagrani G. D. Babu Lad College, Kundal

Accounting Treatment-
In hire purchase and instalment systems, the purchaser agrees to pay the cost of asset in convenient instalments along with the interest thereon. Thus each instalment paid by consists of-

- 1) Capital Cost- i.e. the amount paid towards the cost of asset and
- 2) Revenue Cost- i.e. interest paid for the delay in payment. The interest paid is revenue expenditure to the hire or instalment purchaser and it is gain to the vendor.

For accounting of hire purchase and instalment transactions, it is of almost importance to separate these two elements in each instalment viz. cash price and interest charge. Interest being revenue expenditure must be transferred to 'Profit & Loss A/c' and cash value being capital expenditure should be debited to 'Asset A/c'.

Krantiagrani G. D. Babu Lad College, Kundal

Methods of instalment analysis:
There are five (5) methods of analysis of instalments.

- 1) Simple Method-I – When rate of interest, cash price of asset and instalments are known
- 2) Simple Method-II – When instalments are not known
- 3) Reverse Method – When cash price of asset is not known
- 4) Ratio Method – When the rate of interest is not known
- 5) Annuity Table Method

Krantiagrani G. D. Babu Lad College, Kundal

Accounting Entries in the books of Hire-Purchaser –
There are two methods of recording the hire purchase transactions in the books of Hire- Purchaser.

- A) Asset debited with part Cash Price/ Part Cash Price Method
- B) Asset debited with full Cash Price/ Full Cash Price Method

A) Part Cash Price Method –
Under this method, the 'Asset A/c' is debited with the amount of cash price paid through instalment, as and when the instalments are paid and 'Interest A/c' is debited with the interest amount paid from time to time.

Following journal entries are passed to record hire purchase transactions under this method.

Krantiagrani G. D. Babu Lad College, Kundal

2. When Cash down payment is made-
